

DEBBY WOLFE is a comedy writer from Hollywood, Florida. Raised by a Jewish Father and a Salvadorian mother, after she cleans her house, she pays herself. She graduated from the NBC Writers on the Verge program and landed her first staff writing position on NBC's "Whitney" Season 2. She then spent two seasons at Disney Channel where she wrote for the Emmy nominated "Dog with a Blog" and sold an original comedy titled "House of Beatz". Afterwards, she joined Netflix's "One Day at a Time", produced by Norman Lear, for three seasons. During that time, she sold an original CBS Latinx family comedy titled "Just Like Us", supervised by "One Day at a Time" showrunner, Gloria Calderon Kellett. Last year, she sold a supernatural comedy to Netflix titled "Basic Witches". Currently, she is a Co-Executive Producer on ABC's The Conners and developing new projects.

Debby is repped by ICM and 3 Arts Entertainment.