

Long bio:

Jenniffer Gómez is a Queer Latinx writer from San Juan, Puerto Rico. She most recently wrote on Facebook Watch series, Sacred Lies, and was a writer/producer on Starz's Vida. Previously, she directed a cross-country documentary about a group of undocumented activists who walked from San Francisco to Washington, D.C. for immigrant rights. One of those activists became her wife. They met in Provo, Utah, and fell in love by the time they reached Denver. Hence, why their Bichon Frise is now called Denver. You can watch the documentary, American Dreamers, which premiered at the 2015 LA Film Festival, on Amazon Prime. Jenniffer earned an MFA in Screenwriting from LMU and a BA in English from Boston College. She is currently writing a pilot for Blumhouse TV production based on the Sundance award-winning documentary-narrative film, The Infiltrators.

Shorter Bio:

Jenniffer Gómez is a Queer Latinx writer from San Juan, Puerto Rico. She most recently wrote on Facebook Watch series, Sacred Lies, and was a writer/producer on Starz's Vida. Previously, she directed a cross-country documentary about a group of undocumented activists who walked from San Francisco to Washington, D.C. for immigrant rights. You can watch the documentary, American Dreamers, which premiered at the 2015 LA Film Festival, on Amazon Prime. Jenniffer earned an MFA in Screenwriting from LMU and a BA in English from Boston College. She is currently writing a pilot for Blumhouse TV production based on the Sundance award-winning documentary-narrative film, The Infiltrators.

280 characters:

Jenniffer Gómez is a Queer Latinx writer from San Juan, Puerto. She wrote on Facebook Watch series, Sacred Lies, and was a writer/producer on Starz's Vida. She's currently writing a pilot for Blumhouse TV production based on Sundance award-winning documentary, The Infiltrators.