BIO

Julia Ahumada Grob is the love child of a Jewish single mom and hippie Chilean exile dad who met in the movement but never married. A native New Yorker, Julia writes both comedy and drama with the mission to create stories that provoke and inspire change. Her passion for TV writing grew from creating and starring in East WillyB an innovative digital series named the "Latino show for a new generation" by the NY Times. She sold and developed the series for television at ABC/ABC Studios. A graduate of Brown University, Julia's love of storytelling is fueled by her "mutt" identity and once-in-a-lifetime experiences: she lived in Chile during the country's first democratic elections; studied singing at the prestigious "Fame" high school; toured nationally with her autobiographical one-woman show; and once spoke with Fidel Castro. Since moving to LA, Julia has staffed on Mr. Iglesias for Netflix, ABC's Galavant and Disney's Stuck in the Middle. As a creator, she has developed with ABC/Disney, Fullscreen Media, Kronicle Media and Will Packer Productions. She has been featured as an artist to watch in Latina Magazine and was named a writer/creator to watch by Robert Rodriguez, Lin-Manuel Miranda, and Zoe Saldana as a part of their LATINXT LIST. She lives on the East Side of LA with her United Colors of Benetton Family: a Black poet husband, Afro-Latinx son, and gangsta cat from the streets of Brooklyn.
