

Lindsey Villarreal is a Los Angeles based TV/ Feature writer and producer focusing on female driven and Latinx influenced content. Villarreal is currently Supervising Producer on “George and Tammy” for Spectrum Originals. Prior she has written for shows such as “Resident Evil” for Netflix, “Vida” for Starz, “The Purge” for USA and “Sacred Lies” for Facebook Watch. Villarreal earned an MFA from USC's School of Cinematic Arts and a BS from The University of Texas at Austin.

Villarreal grew up in San Antonio, Texas where she idolized Selena and the band At the Drive In at the same time. Her Tejana background and activist centered view both color her writing heavily. She is a professional Caricature artist and a marathon runner. She has two tattoos from her favorite tarot reader and a dog named Burger.